ENGLISH FRENCH

Ebola is also one of the most contagious and frightening diseases that exists. It can kill its victim in as little as 48 hours. Yet those stricken need round the clock medical care. Who are these health care workers that risk their lives to help the needy and stop the disease from spreading? In EBOLA WAR, the nurses of Gulu, Uganda tell the emotional stories of how they struggle to contain an outbreak, losing co-workers in the process. Through interviews, personal accounts and archival footage, this intimate and moving film documents a five-month heroic battle against a modern-day plague, and the final triumph over the outbreak.
